Fr. Richard H. Roos, SJ, a native of Hartford, CT, entered the Society in 1962 and was ordained to the priesthood in 1974. He taught and served as chaplain at Cheverus High School and later served in Jamaica for 10 years as pastor of several churches, rector of the Jesuit Community at St. George's College in Kingston and socius to the regional superior. He then served as director of communications and information technology for the New England Province and minister at Loyola House. He currently serves as minister of the Blessed Peter Faber Jesuit Community and offers spiritual direction, collaborates on retreats for homeless men and celebrates Mass in prisons.